

Kelly Exeter
Communications Director - Perth Redbacks

Relationship to Redbacks

Kelly's late husband, Anthony, played three of his 13 SBL seasons for the Redbacks in 2001, 2004 and 2005. So it was lovely for them to reconnect with the club when their son Jaden started playing in the Redbacks domestic competition in 2017. Today both Jaden and their daughter Mia play in the domestic competition while also representing the club in WABL.

Kelly first joined the PBA Board as Communications Director at the end of 2019 and has held that position on the Board since.

Qualifications:

Kelly has a Bachelor of Science (Human Movement and Exercise Science) degree from the University of WA.

Professional background:

After University, Kelly worked in Sports Administration for two years before retraining in graphic design and working full-time as a graphic designer for four years.

While holding down those full-time roles in sports admin and graphic design, Kelly also competed at an elite level in triathlon. The highlights of that career included representing the country of her birth – Trinidad and Tobago – at two Commonwealth Games (2002, 2006) and one World Championships (2000) and winning the Busselton Half Ironman in 2003.

During her 10 years competing in triathlon, Kelly worked in a volunteer capacity for Triathlon WA, managing their design, publications and communications (online and print).

Upon retiring from triathlon, Kelly started her own graphic and web design business, Swish Design. She also re-engaged with her lifelong love of writing at this time and would go on to author five books of her own while ghostwriting and/or editing ten others.

Over the course of 12 years, Kelly and Anthony built a suite of four businesses under the Swish banner. After Anthony died in a freak accident at the start of 2019, Kelly wound up three of those businesses and today works primarily in a communications and marketing role for HPH Solutions.
