LUKE'S LOOK

WITH NBL1 HEAD COACH
LUKE SUNDERLAND

We've been in a stretch of tight contests lately, and while that can be challenging, it's also a strong sign of how competitive this group has become. Every game has been decided by small moments, and those experiences are helping shape us as a team. The next step is making sure we put those lessons into practice consistently across four quarters.

It's great to welcome back Isaac Etter this week, and hopefully we can start building some continuity with a healthier and more complete squad over the coming rounds. Having consistency with personnel is important, particularly as we continue to develop chemistry and rhythm on both ends of the floor.

This week presents another big challenge against Geraldton Buccaneers, a benchmark program in the league for sustained success. Their culture, coaching, buy-in, and style of play have consistently stood up against any opposition, and they've set the standard for what a connected team looks like.

For us, it's a great opportunity to test ourselves against one of the competition's best and see how we can match their discipline, physicality, and execution. We're looking forward to the challenge and the chance to continue growing as a group.
